Performance Commentary

Emerging market equities had a strong start to 2023, outperforming developed markets helped by the reopening in China combined with a weakening dollar. The fund continued to outperform the MSCI EM index in January, in a market environment which is now more conducive to active stock-picking. Growth in China's economic activity is anticipated as Covid restrictions end, while signs that the government's heavy-handed regulation has peaked supported our internet and tech-related names. Alibaba was supported by official recognition of antitrust rectification and a recent approval of Ant Consumer Finance's capital expansion. Prosus and Naspers continued their extensive share buybacks while gradually selling down in Tencent. Ping An sentiment was also helped by a relaxation in the Chinese property market. CNOOC's strategy preview was solid, emphasising an attractive valuation. The perception of improved fundamentals has already positively affected equity valuations in China, and we are therefore gradually repositioning the portfolio towards the next undervalued stories. We recently visited our Brazilian holdings including Raizen, a bioenergy company, which was a detractor for the month on uncertainty regarding Lula's agenda. Despite a strong start to the year, the portfolio is full of attractively valued companies trading at an aggregated 0.8x P/B which is half the price of the MSCI EM index.

The fund selects low-priced, high-quality companies, mainly in emerging economies. The objective is to provide the best possible risk adjusted return. The fund is suitable for those with at least a five year investment horizon. Subscriptions are made in fund units and not directly in stocks or other securities. The fund has risk profile 6. The benchmark reflects the fund's investment mandate. Since the fund is actively managed, the portfolio will deviate from the composition of the benchmark.
