Investment strategy

SKAGEN m2 provides exposure to a normally difficult to access global real estate market. The fund selects low-priced, high-quality real estate companies from around the world. The fund is suitable for those with at least a five year investment horizon. Subscriptions are made in fund units and not directly in stocks or other securities. The benchmark reflects the fund's investment mandate. Since the fund is actively managed, the portfolio will deviate from the composition of the benchmark.

Monthly commentary, February 2025

The global real estate market delivered positive returns for the month of February and outperformed the broader equity market index. US ten-year yields dropped lower as investors sought refuge amidst the heightened uncertainty around trade policy and increased geopolitical tensions.

Listed real estate continues to benefit from strong cash flows, with signs indicating that the real estate cycle is moving in the right direction. Historically, listed real estate tends to turn around first in such cycles, suggesting that the current downturn may be a good time to enter the sector.

In February, the fund's top performer was Independence Realty Trust (IRT), the US-listed residential apartment owner and operator. IRT delivered a decent fourth quarter report, and outlook for 2025 that was slightly better than their peers. They also made corporate governance changes to the board, which would increase the odds of a take-over in the future. The fund's second-best performer was one of the new positions entered in January, namely US senior homes operator Brookdale Senior Living. Brookdale delivered a report in line with expectations and continues to show improvement in occupancy which will improve EBITDA margins and contribute to deleveraging.

At the other end of the spectrum, the fund's biggest detractor was Nexity, the French real estate developer. Nexity delivered a fourth quarter report with lower EBITDA than expected and decided not to pay a dividend for 2024 given the weak results and market conditions.

We remain focused on resilient companies operating in trend-driven subsegments that are undervalued but have the potential to thrive in various market conditions. These companies typically have solid balance sheets, an increasingly important factor as financials improve across the sector. The portfolio remains strategically overweight in high-growth real estate segments, including digital real estate, housing, and warehouses – sectors poised to benefit from structural demand trends and a shifting yield curve as interest rates decline. Given that real estate is the world's largest asset class, it deserves your attention – don't overlook the opportunities it presents!
