French election relief

- The results of the first round of the French election led to a relief rally in the Eurozone bond market. The prospect of the centric, independent candidate Emmanuel Macron becoming the next French president (confirmed on 7 May) reduced political risk. In addition, progress made in the negotiations between Greece and its creditors contributed to lower credit risk in the Eurozone. As a result, the euro appreciated and peripheral interest rates fell.
- The Portuguese bond in SKAGEN Tellus was the best performer in the fund in April. The fall in interest rates lifted the bond price by 2.7 percent.
- Falling commodity prices continued to weigh on commodity currencies. The New Zealand dollar and the Canadian dollar were the poorest performers in May, but the other commodity currencies also lost value relative to the euro.
- The duration of SKAGEN Tellus is currently 3.1 years, which is substantially lower than the index's duration of 7.7 years. Given the current state of the business cycle, we only take interest rate risk in countries where there is still a solid case for a fall in the interest rate going forward and/or the yield is attractive.
- We have longer duration in countries were we expect the credit premium to fall, such as Portugal and Croatia, or where there is a high interest rate, e.g. Peru and Chile. We have very low duration on our investments in the US, UK, Canada, Mexico and Norway. These holdings are based on an expectation that the currency will appreciate.
