Investment strategy

SKAGEN Kon-Tiki Lux is a value-based emerging markets equity fund that seeks to generate long-term capital growth by investing in a high conviction portfolio of companies which are listed in, or have significant exposure to, developing markets. The fund is actively managed and applies a contrarian and price-driven investment process to create a portfolio that is typically biased towards small- and mid-cap companies, and trades at a material discount to its benchmark based on traditional valuation metrics as well as to intrinsic value.

Risk profile (SRI)

We have classified this product as 4 out of 7, which is a medium risk class.

The summary risk indicator is a guide to the level of risk of this product compared to other products. It shows how likely it is that the product will lose money because of movements in the markets. A medium risk class rates the potential losses from future performance at a medium level. Other risks materially relevant to the PRIIP not included in the summary risk indicator: Event risk, liquidity risk, operational risk, counterparty risk, derivatives risk and currency risk. If the fund invests in securities in a currency other than the fund's base currency, the value is affected by changes in the exchange rate. In addition, the value of your payout may be affected if your local currency is different from the fund's currency. This product does not include any protection from future market performance so you could lose some or all of your investment.

Portfolio manager commentary, April 2026

Global equity markets rebounded strongly in April despite continued uncertainty in the Middle East. The combination of a US-Iranian ceasefire and strong corporate earnings saw investor optimism return, especially in the AI-led technology sector. Emerging Markets equities benefitted from this risk-on backdrop and outperformed Developed Markets by a wide margin. SKAGEN Kon-Tiki performed well in absolute terms but fell short of its benchmark, in large part due to the regulatory cap on its investment in TSMC, which continued to perform strongly.

Samsung Electronics was yet again the largest contributor during the month on the back of extremely strong Q1 results that saw revenues and operating profits increase by 68% and 755% respectively from the same period last year. The increase was driven by continued strong momentum in the semiconductor division, which benefits from strong pricing for memory on the back of AI-related demand. TSMC is also a key beneficiary of the AI investment cycle and reported strong Q1 results with revenues and operating profits increasing by 35% and 62% respectively. Higher utilisation meant that management gave market-beating second quarter margin guidance and even raised its full year revenue growth guidance to ‘above 30% in US dollars’. Korean financial institution Hana Financial also contributed positively on the back of strong Q1 results and expectations for continued shareholder returns. On the negative side, the Brazilian market underperformed during April and both pulp producer Suzano and cash & carry retailer Assai posted negative returns due to weak quarterly results. Hong Kong listed shoe manufacturer Yue Yuen also posted weak results as rising wage costs and weaker factory utilisation weighed on margins as tariff headwinds emerged.

During the month, we invested in Tencent Music, an online music entertainment platform in China. The company has more than 500 million monthly users of its platform services, 127 million of which are paying subscribers. We see the continued rise of subscribers, exclusive content and value-added online services as providing long-term monetisation potential. With the shares recently having sold off on fears of the impact of AI on online music streaming, we see a compelling risk/reward proposition with the shares trading on just 9x next year’s earnings and with a highly overcapitalised balance sheet, including sizeable stakes in Spotify and Universal Music Group.

We sold out of our holding in Turkish hard discount retailer Sok Marketler due to its tobacco exposure exceeding our ESG criteria. We also reduced our positions in TSMC and Samsung Electronics following strong performance and to stay within UCITS requirements. Recent strong performance from oil & gas company Petrobras, Chinese pork producer WH Group and LG Electronics also led us to trim our exposure and recycle the funds towards Naspers and Prosus that give us indirect exposure to Tencent and other-internet related investments at a discount.

At month-end, the portfolio traded at less than 9x earnings and 1.2x book value, compared with over 12x earnings and 2.4x book value for the MSCI Emerging Markets index. As a result, the portfolio retains its attractive absolute and relative value characteristics despite the market re-rating. In an environment where index returns remain concentrated and increasingly sentiment-driven, we believe disciplined, price-driven rebalancing and bottom-up stock selection remain the most reliable path to sustained outperformance, especially during periods of heightened geopolitical volatility.

Sustainability

SKAGEN's approach to sustainability

Our ESG approach is built on four pillars. In keeping with SKAGEN's active investment philosophy, our sustainability activities centre on active engagement with our holding companies, which is where we believe we can have the greatest impact. We recognise, however, that the full potential of a sustainable investment strategy is best realised when combining the following four pillars.

- ✓ Exclusion
- ✓ Enhanced due diligence
- ✓ ESG factsheet
- ✓ Active ownership

Article 8

Sustainable Finance Disclosure Regulation (SFDR)

The product promotes environmental and social characteristics by directing its capital towards companies and issuers that meet defined ESG (environmental, social and governance) criteria. This is achieved through compliance with international norms and conventions, by taking into account negative impacts on sustainable development (PAI) and through product- or activity-based exclusions. See the prospectus for more information on the products sustainability characteristics.
